THE NATION MOURNS!

Death Came to President McKinley After a Heroic Struggle for Life.

MRS. McKINLEY BEARS UP BRAVELY

The Last Words He Uttered, "It Is God's Way. His Will be Done, Not Ours," Will Live as an Evidence of Christian Courage and a Grandly Eloquent Existence.

INTERMENT IN FAMILY PLOT AT CANTON

William McKinley president of the United States and the idol of seventy millions of people, passed away Saturday at 2:15 a. m. at the residence of John G. Milburn, Buffalo. The sad story of his last hours is best told in the telegraphic dispatches which follow:

BUFFALO, Sept. 13. 6 p. m.

Special to REPUBLICAN.

AN ALARMING BULLETIN.

President McKinley is dying. All hope abandoned.

CABINET AND FAMILY SUMMONED

BUFFALO, 7:10 P. M.—Mrs. McKinley, Abner McKinley and relatives are at bedside. Cabinet and others are waiting in the ante room. Physicians say the end is in sight. Heart beats imperceptible.

7:20—Troops at Fort Porter ordered under arms. Police reserves massed at headquarters to guard assassin Czolgosz.

BUFFALO, 8 P. M.—Regained consciousness under restoratives and called "Ida." Wife supporting head. Oxygen again given and President recognized several. Doctors ordered relatives except wife from room.

8:05—Doctors say President has 20 minutes to live.

TROOPS CALLED OUT.

BUFFALO, 9 P. M.—President in extremis. Company of Fourteenth infantry just arrived at house. Crowds around house driven back. Government telegraph tent guarded. National Guard regiment under arms reported to Chief of Police. Artillery regulars in charge of Exposition grounds. City of Buffalo virtually under martial law. Mounted police forced back mob surrounding police headquarters. Cabinet officers just left death chamber after bidding farewell to their stricken chief. Hanna completely broke down, kissed President's forehead and had to be led from room. Digitalis and strychnine were administered to Mrs. McKinley. She is keeping up bravely.

ITS GOD'S WILL SAYS MCKINLEY.

BUFFALO, 10 P. M.—Secretary Cortelyou says last moments have arrived. Just before the President relapsed into unconsciousness which is believed to preceded death he kissed his wife and murmured "Nearer My God to Thee." He lapsed into unconsciousness before he finished the last stanza of the hymn. Secretary Root and other prominent men just left the house sobbing. Those now at bedside are relatives, excepting Private Secretary Cortelyou. Pulse flickering and body growing cold. Peaceful smile on his face. Mrs. McKinley given restoratives again. She almost fainting. Troops all out massed in front of police headquarters. Crowds wildly excited. Men and women sobbing hysterically in the streets. Many unconfirmed reports of death. Dr. Mann copied President's last words which were "Its God's will, his will not ours be done."

MRS. MCKINLEY COLLAPSED.

BUFFALO, 11 P. M.—Mrs. McKinley has just collapsed and had to be carried from room. Doctors working over her, Dr. Stockton finds no change for the hour. Everybody sent out of room. Doctors and nurses again working over the President. Dr. Mann announces that the President may live an hour or more.

ALBANY, 11 P. M.—Roosevelt galloped over 35 miles of road to take waiting special train.

NEW YORK.—Immense crowds in front of newspaper offices. Police reserves called out.

BUFFALO, 11:15 P. M.—Rooms in the rear of Milburn house hitherto dark, suddenly, brilliantly lighted. Great activity in the house.

Sept. 14, 12:15 a. m.—President is practically dead says message from the house. Scarcely breathing, pulseless extremities cold and no circulation. Dr. McBurney says his vitality is surprising. May remain in this condition several hours or may die at any moment.

BUFFALO, Sept. 14.—President McKinley died at 2:15 this morning.

NEW YORK, Sept. 14, 9 a. m.—There will be no session of the New York Stock exchange today owing to death of President.

NEW YORK, Sept. 14, 9:30 a. m.—A cablegram from London, Eng., announces that out of respect to the late President McKinley the London Stock exchange will be closed today.

Special to REPUBLICAN.

BUFFALO, Sept. 14, 4 p. m.—Private funeral services at Milburn House, Sunday at 5 p. m. Funeral leaves for Washington at 8:30 Monday morning over P. R. R. Via. Harrisburg.

BUFFALO, Sept. 16.—Buffalo Sunday became a city of mourners. The gay and flaming decorations of the Pan-American Exposition gave way to the symbol of sorrow. The black drapery of the city's streets mutfled the tolling bells of the churches. Bits of crepe appeared on every sleeve. The sorrow was everywhere apparent.

In the morning a simple service took place at the residence on Delaware avenue where the martyred President died. A hymn was sung and prayer offered over the dead body. That was all. Only the immediate family and the friends and political assistants of the late President were present. The scene there was pathetic in the extreme.

Then the body was borne out to the waiting cortege on the brawny shoulders of eight sailors and soldiers of the Republic. The cortege passed through solid walls of living humanity, bearheaded and grief stricken, to the City Hall where the body lay in state during the afternoon.

There a remarkable demonstration occurred which proved how close the President was to the hearts of the people. Arrangements had been made to allow the public to view the body from the time it arrived, at about 1 o'clock, until about 5 o'clock. But the people were wedged into streets for blocks.

Two lines were formed. They extended literally for miles. When 5 o'clock came 40,000 people had already passed and the crowds waiting below in the streets seemed undiminished. It was decided to extend the time until midnight. Then for hours longer the streets were dense with people and a constant stream flowed up the steps of the broad entrance into the hall and passed the bier. When the doors were closed it was estimated that 80,000 people had viewed the body, but thousands of disappointed ones were still in the streets.

The body will lie in the City Hall until morning. It will be taken to the station by a military escort and at 8:30 the funeral train, consisting of seven cars, will start for Washington over the Pennsylvania railroad. Mrs. McKinley, the President, the Cabinet and relatives and friends of the dead President will accompany the body.

Mrs. McKinley bore up bravely Sunday during the services at the Milburn residence and Dr. Rixey, her physician, thinks she will be able to support her trying part in the state funeral at Washington.

The day was gray and cheerless. Heavy clouds hung over the city, at times breaking to let through a rift of sunshine and then threatening to let loose a downpour upon the gathering multitude. The air was humid and heavy, and only a light wind from the south stirred the drooping flags and the emblems of mourning. The very elements seemed to lend fitting accompaniment to the scene of sorrow about to be enacted.

Many of those who passed the coffin carried in their hands some single flower, which they would keep carefully concealed, then as they moved rapidly by, they would drop it on the catafalque or on the floor near by. So rapidly did these small tributes of the sorrowing people accumulate that it was several times found necessary to gather them up and remove them.

A picturesque incident of the day was the arrival at the City Hall of 125 Indians from the Congress of Indians at the Pan-American Exposition. There were big chiefs and fierce looking braves in the tawdy splendor of war clothes and paint. There were fat squaws, gorgeous in many-hued blankets, and funny looking little papooses, who stared wonderingly at all about them.

The chiefs brought with them a wreath of white carnations which they were permitted to put at the foot of the catafalque. Each Indian dropped a flower near the casket as he or she passed. The wreath they brought bore an inscription in Sioux language, praying that the Great White Father should have a peaceful sleep.

The funeral train will run by way of Harrisburg and is expected to reach Washington at about 10 o'clock tonight.

On the arrival of the train at Washington the coffin will be removed to the White House and will lie in the East room tonight.

On Tuesday morning the body of the dead President will be removed to the National Capitol and there, under the rotunda, it will lie in state in custody of a guard of honor. The body will remain in the Capitol until Wednesday.

Brief funeral services will be held at the Capitol Wednesday morning when the coffin will be removed to the train which will then leave for Canton via Harrisburg and Pitteburg.

WASHINGTON, September 17.—The remains of President McKinley now lie in the East Room of the white house where for more than four years he had made his home as the chief magistrate of this great American republic. Upstairs his widow mourned for her dead in the family apartments that now bring back but the saddest of memories. It was with simple ceremony and a silence that fitted perfectly the sadness of the occasion, that the body of the late president was borne up Pennsylvania avenue to the white house and laid upon the bier in the great East Room, where he had stood so often in the prime of his manhood to receive the greetings of the common people he loved better than himself. It was fitting that such ceremony as there was should be severely military in character, in recognition of the fact that the president was the commander-in-chief of the United States army and navy. Nowhere was there a show of civilian participation. The streets about the station were filled with mounted troops and the station itself was occupied by stalwart soldiers and sailors in uniform. The blue coated policemen and the railroad employes were nearly all that stood for civil life. It was not so on the broad stretch of avenue that led to the white house. There the people strained and crowded in a vast multitude against the stiff wire ropes which restrained them from the space marked out for the line of procession.

Mrs. McKinley was aided from the car by Abner McKinley and Dr. Rixey and speedily placed in a carriage which drove at once to the white house without awaiting the procession. Close behind came the members of the late president's cabinet, who were also driven away immediately to the executive mansion. Mrs. McKinley was deeply veiled. She appeared to bear up with fortitude, but leaned heavily on the arms of her supporters.

President Roosevelt came next. His arm was closely clasped by Captain Cowles, of the navy, his brother-in-law, who walked rather hastily along between the files of officers to the carriageway next the gates of the station.

SCENES ALONG THE ROUTE.

At Renovo ropes had been stretched to keep back the crowds which surged through the neighboring streets. A big flag with President McKinley's picture framed in crepe was strung from corner to corner of the station, and in front of it were hundreds of school children, their hats in their hands and their little faces grave. This was the terminus of one of the railroad divisions and the train hands were all lined up with bared heads.

President Roosevelt lunched in the dining car of the train with Secretary Root at 1:30. The members of the cabinet and other distinguished personages aboard the train had preceded him into the diner. Mrs. McKinley and her immediate party remained in the car Olympia which was provided with its own dining car service.

At Lock Haven, the young ladies of the city lined up along the track and strewed the path of the dead president with flowers. Some had baskets brimming full of color and others held the fragrant blossoms in their arms. They poured the wealth of their floral offering beneath the cruel wheels.

At Williamsport, which was reached at 2:30, there was a remarkable demonstration, the feature of which was the presentation of an immense floral offering by 5,000 school children of the city. It was received by Colonel T. C. Bingham, the president's aide. He stood on the platform of the observation car of which the catafalque lay exposed to view and the scene was profoundly impressive.

After leaving Williamsport the train ran through stretches of farming country, dotted here and there with small manufacturing towns. At Milton all work was suspended and the town turned out en masse at the station and lined the railroad track. At the busy little town of Sunbury the shops closed down for a time and the brawny workmen lined up in their overalls with serious faces and hats in hand. All ages and conditions of the people joined in the tribute—the children with tiny flags topped with knots of black, and babes held above the crowd for a sight they might never see again. It had been the intention to run through Sunbury without a stop, but such were the importunities of the townspeople that the train pulled up for a moment between solid lines of people.

In the fifty miles from Sunbury to Harrisburg the route skirted the placid Susquehanna, and the vistas of green-clad slope and peak gave way to broad sweeps of rich farming country. The rivermen were aware of the coming of the train. A ponderous dredge halted in its operations and the men lined the deck of the unwieldy craft. At a little town across the river the populace had emptied upon the wharves and could be seen straining for a view of the speeding train.

Approaching Harrisburg, factory hands again lined the tracks. The roof tops of buildings were alive with people. Flags were half-masted and emblems of mourning were at every hand. Hundreds of men and women crowded the tops of freight cars. Within the station the people were banked in thousands, surging through all the approaching streets as far as the eye could reach. From a huge viaduct spanning the track countless faces peered down into the car windows. The tolling of the church bells could be heard and as the train entered the station the shrill notes of a bugle sounded taps. Just as the train stopped a great choir, ranged tier on tier on the station steps, began "Nearer My God to Thee," and then as the train pulled out the strains turned to "My Country, 'Tis of Thee."

A remarkable spectacle was presented as the train moved across the long bridge spanning the Susquehanna from Harrisburg. On either side the stream, up and down for miles, the banks teemed with legions of people. Again at York the train moved a half a mile between avenues of solid humanity and windows and house tops alive with people. By this time the sun was getting low and in the throngs were hundreds of workmen with their dinner pails. Everywhere the same scenes of sorrow and reverence that had gone before were re-enacted.

Night came on as the train sped from York to Baltimore without a stop, and in the darkness only the flickering lights along the way and the tolling of bells at the stations bespoke that the manifestations of sorrow were still going on. As the train drew into Baltimore black masses of people could be seen ranged upon huge viaducts which span the line of the road, and at every street crossing a living tide surged up to the train. Nearing the station the locomotive literally plowed its way among the flowers, for great masses of blossoms had been strewn along the pathway of the train. Inside the station the iron railing held back a surging multitude, while within the rail the entire force of the city postoffice were drawn up on one side of the track, with banners wound with crepe, and the force of the custom house on the other side. In front of the crowd stood Mayor Hayes, with his sister, each bearing clusters of roses and palms, a tribute from the city to be placed on the bier of the dead president. As the flowers were passed within the train, the notes of "Nearer My God to Thee" again arose. A moment later the train was off for the final destination. At Baltimore the entire make-up of the train was reversed, catafalque car now being at the front, while that of Mrs. McKinley and the relatives, President Roosevelt and the cabinet, and public officials, followed in the order named.

Is was shortly before 8.30 o'clock that the distant lights of the national capitol came into view. At 8.38 the train swept into the station around which a great concourse were waiting to receive their dead.

Special to the REPUBLICAN.

WASHINGTON, D. C. Sept. 17.—The remains of the dead President were taken to the capitol at eleven o'clock this morning. The vast congregation in the rotunda of the capitol arose and remained standing while the Marine Band rendered the favorite hymns of the departed ruler, and not a dry eye was to be seen among the great throng inside and outside of the capitol building. Mrs. McKinley was unable to attend the service in the capitol. She is showing visible signs of collapse and is very feeble. Dr. Rixey and others are constantly administering to her.

WASHINGTON, September 18.—All that is mortal of William McKinley is speeding toward its last earthly resting place at his beloved home in Canton, after the nation had officially and with state ceremony paid its tribute of respect and love to the memory of its stricken chief magistrate. This was almost the closing act in the awful tragedy which has drenched the civilized world in tears. Beneath the great white dome of the capitol funeral services of state were held Tuesday over the remains of the dead president. It was eminently fitting that the services should be conducted in that beautiful rotunda, hallowed by the history of the last sad rites of two other martyrs to the cause of the republic. As befitted the occasion and the character of the man whose remains were lying cold and rigid in the narrow embrace of the metalic casket, the services were simple. They were conducted in accordance with the rites of the Methodist Episcopal church, of which President McKinley was a lifelong member. Conisting of only two hymns, a song, a prayer, an address and a benediction, they were beautiful and solemnly impressive. Gathered around the bier were representatives of every phase of American national life, including the president and the only surviving ex-president of the United States together with representatives at this capital of almost every nation of the earth. Great Britain, France, Germany, Italy, Spain and all the republics to the southward of the United States mingled their tears with those of the American people.

Despite the fact that no decorations were in the interior of the rotunda, the assemblage presented a memorable sight. The sombre black of the attire of the hundreds of civilians present was splashed brilliantly with the blue and gold of the representatives of the army and the navy and the court costumes of the diplomatic corps. As the sweet notes of Mr. McKinley's favorite hymn, "Lead, Kindly Light," floated through the great rotunda, the assemblage rose to its feet. Bared heads were bowed and eyes streamed with tears. At the conclusion of the hymn, as Rev. Dr. Naylor, presiding elder of the Washington district, rose to offer prayer, the hush that fell upon the people was profound. When in conclusion he repeated the immortal words of the Lord's Prayer, the great audience joined solemnly with him. The murmur of their voices resembled nothing less than the roll of far distant surf.

Scarcely had the word "amen" been breathed when the liquid tone of that sweetly pleading song "Some Time We'll Understand" went straight to the heart of every auditor. The solo was sung by Mrs. Thomas C. Noyes, of this city, and the beautiful refrain was echoed and re-echoed by the doubled quartette choir.

The venerable Bishop Edward G. Andrews, of Washington, the oldest bishop of the Methodist Episcopal church, then took his position at the head of the bier. A gentle breeze through the rotunda stirred the delicate blooms which lay upon the coffin and the "peace that passeth all understanding" seemed to rest upon the venerable man's countenance as he began his eulogy of the works of William McKinley. His words were simple, but his whole heart was in everyone of them. His tribute to the Christian fortitude of the dead president was impressive. Upon the conclusion of the sermon the audience joined the choir in singing "Nearer My God to Thee."

All present seemed to be imbued with a sentiment of hallowed resignation as the divine blessing was asked by the Rev. W. H. Chapman, acting pastor of the Metropolitan Methodist Episcopal church, upon both the living and the dead.

Mrs. McKinley, bereft of husband and prostrated by her overwhelming sorrow, did not attend the services at the capitol. It was deemed wise by those now nearest and dearest to her that she should not undergo the ordeal her attendance would entail upon her. She remained at the white house, comforted by every attention that loving thoughtfulness could suggest. Arrangements for the movement of the funeral cortege from the white house to the capitol were completed Monday night after the remains of the president had been deposited in the historic east room of the mansion. Monday was a perfect autumn day, but Tuesday morning dawned gray and dreary. The sky was overcast with low, flying clouds. Nature itself seemed to be in mourning for the nation's dead. As the hours passed dashes of rain fell at intervals, but despite this discomfort thousands of sorrowing people appeared early upon the streets. Both sides of Pennsylvania avenue from the white house to the capitol were massed with an impenetrable cordon of people wishing in this way to pay final tribute of love and respect for the dead.

As the funeral cortege escorted by troops representing every department of the nation's martial service and by representatives of religious and civic organizations passed down the thoroughfares to the solemn notes of the "Dead March from Saul" wailed by the bands, the sorrowing people bared their heads despite the rain, and many tear-stained faces bespoke their grief more eloquently than words. It was a silent throng. Not a sound was heard. With aching hearts all remembered that only a few months ago the dead president then in the fullness of life, and triumph had passed along that same thoroughfare to be inaugurated a second time president. The flags that had fluttered greeting to him in March were crepe bedecked and the cheers became sobs. Grief had usurped the place of joy.

At the conclusion of the funeral services in the rotunda the casket lid was removed in order that the immediate friends

OVERDUE BILL PAID.

Sultan Settles Claims Held Against Him by Uncle Sam.

European Diplomats Astounded by Minister Leishman's Success Which Was Due to Firmness and Persistency.

John G. A. Leishman, United States minister to Turkey, who collected the long-outstanding debt of the sublime porte to the American government, was recently transferred from his post as minister to Switzerland to the mission at Constantinople. He is a native of Pennsylvania and a resident of Pittsburgh. His wealth, which is very great, was accumulated in the iron and steel industry, from which he retired a few years ago. This successful diplomat was reared in the Protestant orphan asylum at Allegheny. He began his business career as an office boy for a physician and left that place to accept a similar occupation with the Shoenberger Steel company. This was a lucky stroke. In 12 years he was cashier of the company and later formed a partnership with W. P. Snyder in the iron brokerage business. In 1886 he formed his connection with the Carnegie company and remained with that concern until 1897. He is noted for his fine judgment of paintings and for his rare capacity as a host.

Congratulations are appropriately offered to Secretary Hay and Mr. Leishman upon their remarkable success in collecting that old $95,000 claim of the United States. The achievement will be regarded as almost a miracle by the statesmen of Europe, says the Chicago Post. Nearly every civilized nation is Turkey's unwilling creditor, in the sense in which the United States was her creditor, but Uncle Sam is the only member of this "concert" who has actually "seen the color" of the sultan's money.

There seems to be no doubt that the debt has been collected. The amount was handed over to Minister Leishman, and by him placed in the Ottoman imperial bank to the credit of the United States. The United States has indulged in no threats or bluster; it has made no naval demonstrations in Turkish waters, though at one time the sensational newspapers published cock-and-bull stories about the likelihood of "war" between this country and Turkey over the claims in question.

JOHN G. A. LEISHMAN.
(United States Minister at Constantinople, Turkey.)

The state department has been gentle, but firm and persistent. It has been at it for more than a decade. The claims, as readers are aware, are chiefly based on the property losses and other injuries sustained by our missionaries and educational institutions in connection with the Armenian atrocities. At first the porte denied all responsibility for the damage, asserting that it had been inflicted by rebellious subjects numerically stronger than the forces of the government. This excuse was easily riddled, and then the familiar game of procrastination and subterfuge was resorted to and continued for years.

Four or five American ministers have successively labored with the sultan and his advisers. They finally convinced him that, unlike Europe, the United States did not mix business with international politics. The future of Turkey, the designs of this or that power on Constantinople, the Balkan troubles and the whole question of the near east had nothing to do with the clear and simple case of discharging a just debt.

COL. STOWE RESIGNS.

United States Consul General at Cape Town Unable to Live on the Salary Allowed.

The resignation of James G. Stowe from the office of consul general of the United States at Capt Town, Cape Colony, has been received at the state department. Col. Stowe says the salary or $8,000 is not sufficient for his expenses, and he is, therefore, compelled to leave the consular service.

Cape Town, he explains, is the most expensive place in the world, but the salary is not as large as that of some consuls at posts where living is cheap. Other governments recognize this, and

COL. JAMES G. STOWE.
(United States Consul General at Cape Town, S. A.)

Col. Stowe points out that the consul of Spain there gets $1,200 more than the salary of the American consul general, the Dutch consul $2,000 more, the French, $4,500 more, and the German, $7,000 more, and this in the face of the fact that American trade interests in Cape Colony are more extensive and important than those of any other country. In addition to their salaries, some foreign consular officers at Cape Town are furnished with residences, rent free, while the American consul general pays his own rent.

Col. Stowe remarks that it cost him nearly a year's salary, traveling expenses not being allowed to the United States consular officers, to bring his family of three from the United States to Cape Town and back to the United States. When he came home recently on leave of absence he was obliged to leave his family here, because it cost too much to take them back.

Col. Stowe's legal residence is Kansas City, Mo. He has been consul general at Cape Town since January 10, 1898.

A hearty appetite does not always indicate a healthy condition. It is not the quantity of food which is eaten but the quantity which is assimilated, which determines the actual value of the food consumed. If the stomach and organs of digestion and nutrition cannot convert the food into nourishment, and into blood, then the food is an injury instead of a benefit. For all disorders of the stomach and its allied organs of digestion and nutrition, there is a certain remedy in Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It removes clogging obstructions. It strengthens the stomach, nourishes the nerves, enriches the blood and builds up the body. It is a flesh-forming, muscle making preparation, making firm flesh instead of flabby fat. "Golden Medical Discovery" contains no alcohol, whisky or intoxicant of any kind, and is equally free from opium, cocaine and all narcotics.

Paid for His Words

On Saturday night a man about one third drunk went into a barroom in the city and called for three cheers for the man that shot President McKinley. He got them—one under each ear from by standers and the third one in the shape of numerous kicks, after he had been knocked down. When last seen, he was running up one of the back streets as fast as his legs could carry him.—Altoona Times.

To Pension Pastors.

A meeting of a committee of the Presbyterian General Synod has been called for Philadelphia September 17, for the purpose of providing ways and means for the pensioning aged of Presbyterian ministers. Is is intended to prepare a plan to be submitted to the General Conference, providing that ministers after they reached a certain age shall be provided for. The board of ministerial relief is not able to give much aid to retired ministers. The average salary of a Presbyterian minister is $637 a year.

Dr. Agnew's Cure for the Heart

PURPLE FOR MULDOON.

Chancellor of the Archdiocese of Chicago Is Created Auxiliary Bishop by the Pope.

Rev. P. J. Muldoon, pastor of St. Charles Borromeo's church, has been chosen auxiliary bishop for the Roman Catholic archdiocese of Chicago.

His appointment was confirmed by the authorities at Rome, June 11, and although no definite day has been set for his consecration, it is thought the services will be held August 24 at the Holy Name cathedral, Chicago.

The news of the selection of Father Muldoon did not come as a surprise to his friends in the church, as it had been expected in ecclesiastical circles that Rome would take such action.

Rev. P. J. Muldoon has been prominently before the Catholic public for the last ten years. Born at Columbia, Cal., in 1863, his elementary education was received in the schools of that town. At the age of 14 years he was batriculated at the collegiate school of St. Mary's, Louisville. Graduating from that institution, he pursued his studies for the priesthood at St. Mary's seminary, Baltimore. He completed his course when 23 years old and was ordained and admitted to the priesthood.

His first assignment was as assistant to Father Henneberry, the pastor of St. Pius' church, Chicago. There the young clergyman began to assert himself and make his activity felt, first in the affairs of the parish and then of the archdiocese.

His ability as a director was recognized early and he was appointed chancellor of the archdiocese of Chicago. During the world's fair he attracted much attention as secretary of the Catholic exhibition, which received such favorable recognition. In 1895 he resigned the chancellorship to become the pastor of St. Charles Borromeo church, Twelfth and Cypress streets.

Profitable Bees.

A farmer down the river started in the spring of 1900 with 8 scaps of bees, which by fall had increased to 17 scaps and the honey output was something over a ton. Not a bad season's work. This year his bees have not done so well but still he is over the enterprise.

Beekeeping is an industry peculiarly fitted to women and why there are not more women engaged in it is a query. Honey is a dainty that finds ready sale if it is of good qualtity and daintily handled and the average woman is far more likely to bestow the painstaking care necessary than are men.

Monsters and Microbes.

How the Microbe Would Appear If Magnified in Size to Correspond With Its Power.

The world has always believed in monsters—great dragons of the land, and huge serpents of the sea. As a rule these monsters have been fairly peaceable, and beyond frightening people occasionally, they have done little recorded harm. The real calamities of humanity have come from the smallest forms of life. The minute microbe has slain its millions upon millions. If this microscopic form of life were depicted in size and form equal to its danger and deadliness we should see a monster which would dwarf into insignificance all the monsters ever begotten by human imagination. The microbe has this in common with the fabled monster, its food is human flesh and its drink human blood. It battens on slaughter. For centuries medical science fought this microbic foe in darkness. The presence of the foe was recognized, its deadliness conceded. But it was ever an invisible foe, unknown and unnamed. To-day science with eye-power increased a million fold finds this lurking foe, knows it and names it.

FINDING THE FOE

is the first step, fighting it intelligently is the next. We know this minute organism lurks in the air we breathe, the food we eat, the water we drink. We know the object of attack is the blood. We know that as the microbe is bred from foulness it must be fed on foulness. Hence, we know that the microbe finds no lodgment in the body when the blood is pure. Keep the blood pure and you shut out the microbe.

When the blood is impure nature at once begins to show the red danger signals. Boils, blotches, pimples, eruptions begin to work upon the skin surface, as signs and symptoms of the corruption of the blood. When these or any signs of blood impurity appear, the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery is confidently recommended as a most powerful and perfect blood-purifying medicine.

"I consider your 'Golden Medical Discovery' one of the best medicines on the face of the earth," writes Wm. Floeter, Esq., of Redoak, Montgomery Co., Iowa. "While in the south-west, three years ago, I got poisoned with poison Ivy. The poison settled in my blood and the horrors I suffered cannot be told in words. I thought I would go crazy. I could do nothing but scratch. I would go to sleep scratching, would wake up in the morning and find myself scratching. I scratched for eight months. Had it not been for your 'Golden Medical Discovery' I would be scratching yet. I tried different kinds of medicine, tried different doctors, but all the relief they could give me was to make my pocketbook lighter. I then began taking Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. Took four bottles without relief. Kept taking it. I took in all ten bottles and got entirely cured. I can say that if people would take your medicine instead of fooling with some of the quacks that infest both the small and large towns, disease would flee like chaff before the wind."

The use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery will absolutely drive out and eliminate the poisons which corrupt the blood.

BAD BLOOD AND GOOD HEALTH

cannot go together. But when the blood is purified and enriched by "Golden Medical Discovery," the result is recorded in sound health. Boils, blotches, pimples and other eruptions disappear as the impurities which caused them are removed. The skin is healthy, the flesh is firm. The dull and sluggish feeling is a thing of the past. The appetite is good, sleep is sound and refreshing and labor an enjoyment instead of a burden.

"It gives me much pleasure to testify to the merits of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery," writes Miss Annie Wells, of Fergussons Wharf, Isle of Wight Co., Va. "I can say honestly and candidly that it is the grandest medicine ever compounded for purifying the blood. I suffered terribly with rheumatism, and pimples on the skin and swelling in my knees and feet so that I could not walk. I spent about twenty dollars paying doctors' bills but received no benefit. A year or two ago I was reading one of your Memorandum Books, and I decided to try Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and 'Favorite Prescription,' and am entirely cured."

Of all prevalent forms of blood disease, scrofula is the most intractable. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery has a remarkable record of cures of scrofulous diseases; remarkable both in the number of cures and their variety as well as in the fact that these cures were effected many times in cases where all other treatment had proved utterly ineffectual.

"I cured my little girl's scrofula with your 'Golden Medical Discovery' and 'Pleasant Pellets,'" writes Mr. Eli Ashford of Raney, Hunt Co., Texas. "It has been four years since then, and there has not been any return of the disease."

There is no alcohol in "Golden Medical Discovery," and it is entirely free from opium, cocaine and all other narcotics.

Why does a dealer sometimes try to sell a substitute for Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, claiming it is "just as good?" Is it for the customer's benefit? It can't be. If the two medicines are equal in merit there's no advantage to the purchaser in an even exchange. The medicines are not equal in merit, and the reason for selling a substitute is only because the less meritorious medicine puts a little more profit into the dealer's pocket. His gain is the customer's loss.

Fault-Finding.

The world will never be much improved by continual and severe criticism. If this were potent in bringing about better conditions, it would long ago have become a vertiable paradise, inhabited only by beings without a single fault. Find fault with every little mistake of your child, impress him that he is bad and you will soon preceive a change for the worse; but praise his good traits, show your appreciation of his worth, and a decided improvement will be perceived. Everlasting fault-finding begets weakness, discouragement, failure and wrong, while honest commendation generates success, strength, encouragement and right. "Finally, brethren, whatsoever things are true, whatsoever things are just, whatsoever things are pure, whatsoever things are lovely, whatsoever things are of good report; if there be any praise, think of these things."

For Over Fifty Years.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup has been used for over fifty years by millions of mothers for their children while teething with perfect success. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, cure wind colic, and is the best remedy for diarrhoea. It will relieve the poor little sufferer immediately. Sold by all druggists in all parts of the world. Twenty-five cents a bottle. Be sure and ask for Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup" and take no other kind.

—Do not forget that this is the time of year when sanitary precautions should be taken. See that your premises are clean.

Having Hard Luck.

We notice by the Williamsport News that Mark Kline formerly of Philipsburg now a resident of Williamsport is having a streak of bad luck. Two weeks ago he was thrown from his bicycle, sustaining an injury to his back that rendered him unconscious and confining him to his bed for several days. On Wednesday evening, while walking along the street, accompanied by his wife and children, he stepped into a hole in the walk and received injuries to his head which threw him into an unconscious state, in which condition he remained for a long time. Late reports indicate that he is improving.

F. H. THOMAS, Sup.

TOOK HIM LITERALLY.

That Was Why His Signature Was Rejected at the Bank.

"Bank clerks are so often called upon for directions that they sometimes fall into the habit of giving them in a hurried and mechanical manner, consequently they are frequently misunderstood," remarked the clerk of a savings institution to a reporter the other day. "For instance, the usual formula when a stranger is called upon to sign his name is, 'Sign here; pen and ink at your left hand.' One morning last week a stranger entered our bank and asked me for a certificate of deposit for a considerable sum of money which he handed over. I counted the money and found the amount to be as stated and hurriedly said, 'Sign there, sir; pen and ink at your left hand.'

"Well, it took the stranger a long time to sign his name, but I thought nothing more of it and issued the certificate of deposit. About a week later the same man, whose face I had forgotten, reappeared and presented the certificate. He dashed off an ornate signature, which I proceeded to compare with the first signature. The two were vastly different, as the first one was apparently the labored effort of an old man.

"'I can't pay you this money, sir,' I said.

"'Why not?' asked the astonished stranger.

"'Because it is not the signature of the man to whom I issued the certificate of deposit,' I replied.

"'Well,' said the stranger, 'when I was here a week ago you told me to write my name with my left hand, and I did so, but I can't write very well that way.'

"'Then will you oblige me by writing your name with your left hand again,' I asked as a light dawned upon me.

"'Certainly,' said the man, and after much labor he produced a facsimile of his first signature, and I apologized and paid him his money."—Washington Star.

LINES OF THE FACE.

THEIR RELATION TO THE BEARD AND THE MUSTACHE.

A Knowledge of Drawing on the Part of Men, Says a Woman Artist, Would Have the Effect of Enhancing Masculine Good Looks.

"A knowledge of drawing on the part of men would have the effect of increasing their good looks," said a lady teacher of that art recently, "and it would make presentable many a man whose appearance is not calculated to excite admiration. It sounds an odd combination, drawing and beauty, does it not? Nevertheless it is a fact."

To the natural request for an explanation she replied:

"The first principles of drawing are geometrical lines and curves. These lines and curves occur in everything. A potter in criticising an ugly shaped jug will most probably tell you that its 'lines' are bad. Most of those who dabble in drawing and gain certificates merely learn to make these lines and curves without acquiring the slightest knowledge of their effect.

"Here is an example. Just take this pencil and draw a face. Oh, anything will do! But be sure to make two straight lines over the eyes for eyebrows. That's it. See how serious that expression is?

"Now rub out those straight lines and in their places make two curves with the ends upward. That face has an expression of intense surprise, hasn't it? If you had made curved eyebrows with the ends down in the first instance, the difference between the two would have been more striking.

"Well, the human face has its 'lines,' and by studying them our men could improve their appearance. The most elementary expedient is to adapt the mustache and beard to the lines of the face, and I must here tell you that 'lines' in technical language include both straights and curves. Such an expedient is within the reach of all, and there is no need for me to remind you that the whiskers make a tremendous difference in a man's appearance.

"Take a man with an aquiline nose, clear cut features and broad brow, then imagine this individual with a long, drooping mustache; why, it accentuates the whole 'droop' of the face and spoils it. Such a man should have a small pointed beard and a mustache with ends pointing slightly upward.

"The exact opposite is also frequently met with. A man with features that have a distinct upward tendency will wear a mustache with ends that are turned up and so long that they seem to be thinking of joining the eyebrows. Men with mustaches that display an inclination to grow long ends think that these ends should be permitted to grow and that they must be trained upward. That strikes them as the only proper way. But to suit the lines of the face those ends should in many cases be cut off, and in others they ought to be trained downward.

"Whiskers, again, are allowed to grow whether they suit the face or not. Often a fine, vigorous, manly face is contradicted by an insipid little mustache worn over a firm, clear cut mouth, the expression of which it does much to alter. It is quite a pity to see such fine lines spoilt in that way. The wearer cultivates the hirsute appendage merely because it is the fashion for men to have a mustache. You talk about women being slaves to Dame Fashion, but in the matter of your whiskers you men are worse slaves than we are to dress!

"Now don't run away with the notion that I advocate general shaving. Some men who are clean shaved ought not to be. The lines of their faces simply demand that of which they are depriving their countenance every morning. It requires a strong, very intellectual face to do without beard or mustache. The latter is an absolute necessity for hiding the bad lines of some mouths that would if left totally uncovered spoil the whole face.

"Women as a rule are more careful of their lines and choose hats and other things to match. Men also study their dress more than the hair on their faces, but a knowledge of drawing would correct many mistakes in hats, collars and other masculine accessories.

"In the matter of color we rather pass from the domain of drawing and mere 'lines' and trespass into the realm of painting, but I cannot resist saying that both men and women, especially the former, would be all the better looking if they knew more about the blending of colors, because they would not then choose hues which do not harmonize with their complexions. I have known a man with red hair to wear a red tie because red ties were fashionable!

"We are all going in for art and the beautiful nowadays, and you men are not handsome as a body. You could make yourselves more handsome by attending to such easily managed details as I have pointed out. See that your sons learn drawing."—Pearson's Weekly.

DeLong—Fore.

A pretty wedding was solemnized at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. J. I. DeLong at Blanchard at 8 o'clock Wednesday morning, when that gentleman's accomplished daughter, Carrie Estella, and Dr. R. B. Fore were united in marriage. The ceremony was performed in the tastefully decorated parlor by Rev. Clarence Brady, of Williamsport. The bride and groom stepped into the parlor to the strains of Mendelssohn's march as capably rendered by Chauncey DeLong. The bride presented a fine appearance in a dress of white organdie trimmed with Valenciennes lace and insertion. After the ceremony breakfast was served, after which the newly married couple left on the train for Dakotah, Ills., where they will make their future home. The bride is an estimable young woman and possesses the traits that will enable her to fulfill all the duties of a true wife. Dr. Fore is a young physician and gives promise of making his mark in that profession.

The guests present were: Mr. and Mrs. W. H, Snyder, Cora Snyder, Mabel Williams and Ella Graham.

OUR DEAD PRESIDENT.

The life of the deceased President was singularly pure and beautiful. Born to an environment in which the activities rather than the amenities of life were assiduously cultivated, his early years gave no promise of the distinguished career that he was destined to run. But the healthful influence of a pure and refined home were present to guide the youth through his school life and the civil war came just as he reached the age of responsibility. Responding promptly to the call of his country it may be said that like other youths of his day he skipped the period of adolescence and emerged from the estate of a boy to the most sterling and exacting requirements of a man. But he was equal to every duty that devolved on him and met every obligation of the soldier life with the spirit of a soldier.

After the expiration of the war the young soldier entered upon the responsibilities of civil life with the same courage, and conscience that had guided him on the field of battle, where he had won distinction for intelligence and valor. He chose the law as his vocation and from the first achieved success in his profession. Soon after he associated in his life the lovely and amiable woman, who, during all the years since, has been his hope and helpmeet, and as he prospered in his profession he increased in popularity until honors began to come to him to add to his happiness and broaden his field of usefulness. His first public office was Representative in Congress and his promotion in civil life was as rapid as his advance in military service. After four terms in Congress he was elected Governor of Ohio and served two terms. In 1896 he was nominated and elected President and entered upon his second term of the greatest of all earthly offices on the Fourth of March last.

Of the manner of President McKinley's death it is almost impossible to speak in temperate terms. Of all human monsters the assassin is the most atrocious and when his murderous hand is raised against a man of such amiable character his work is contemplated with unspeakable horror. Of all men in the civilized world he was least deserving of such a fate. Just, as he understood affairs, kind in an eminent degree, generous to a singular extent and magnanimous as became a broad, brave and able man, he had earned the enmity of no man and deserved the hostility of no individual. "His life was gentle," and his aspirations centered in his love of justice and mankind. That an assassin could centre his hatred upon and wreck his vengeance against such a man passes comprehension. He must, indeed, be a fiend in human form who could strike such a blow, even though his malice was against a people rather than an individual.

"IT IS GOD'S WAY."

He might have said only: "It is God's will;" but when the President, who today lies in the capital of the land he ruled in the last that earth has of state for his clay, said, also: "It is God's way," he spoke that higher thing than mere submission—trust in the ways of Him who does all things well and in whose great plan evil and sin and the murderous acts of men whose hands are lifted to slay the just, come, we know not why, but still know that it is "God's way," bringing to each in this life and another the lot each has and needs for his own share in the wide and final end to which all life moves.

These things are hid from the eyes of men in days when all is well. They come not when the last blow falls if men have not in their secret heart come near them and been echoed by the daily thought and acts of their lives to seek strength in this deeper faith and knowledge. No man knew more of William McKinley before death drew near and he passed under its shadow than his daily and decorous observance of all that the faith and church in which he stood asked of him.

The heart of all the land has been stirred as it stood by the open bedside at Buffalo to see that this faith was near his very soul. Without fear and without doubt, asking no aid of man, seeking no new light at the last hour, walking in the path his feet had long trod, he met death and found his faith strong and death weak.

When an hour after his wound the brief death of ether was before him for an operation, of whose end no man could speak, the one prayer which unites all Christiandom, whatever its divisions, was on his lips, and as consciousness disappeared his lips ceased their words with "Thy will be done." Through all the days in which hope was near eyes were turned to the "kindly light" not of earth, and when hope was gone and death instead drew near, through fading consciousness he murmured the hymn which accepts even the cross so the soul draws nearer to God.

Before all the land this has passed. It has moved all who heard and read. Men doubt and differ. Much grows dim in the stress of the hard-won, hard wrought hour. Few are sure of their own faith and fewer still of their neighbors'. But the man who today has the last of love a great people can give, and for whom flags dip the world around, knew the God in whom he had trust and found His rod and His staff strong as his own steps grew weak.—Phila. September 19, consigned to the grave in West Lawn cemetery, Canton, Ohio.

OUR NATIONAL GRIEF.

One week ago the hearts of the American people were glad with joy that accompanied the assurance from the bedside of our beloved President that he would recover from the wounds inflicted by an assassin's hand. Like a thunderbolt from a clear sky came the tidings last Friday that the President was dying and all hope for his life was gone. Throughout that day and far into the night the people of our country were led up to the death-bed of our stricken ruler in a spirit of resignation if not reconciliation. On Saturday morning, September 14 at 2:15 o'clock, the messenger of death came with his dread summons and William McKinley the first citizen of the Republic, the idol of the American people passed from life into the glories of the eternal rest—for of such as he is the Kingdom of Heaven. He is dead. He has gone from among the people he loved and for whose interests he devoted his life, but the memory of his noble, stainless, career will live with the flight of time and his example will be held up for the emulation of coming generations so long as God wills an existence to the terrestrial world. "It is God's way, His will, not ours, be done."

INFLUENCE OF THE MAN.

The services which William McKinley rendered to his country as soldier, Governor of Ohio and President of the United States have been discussed and will take their place in history; but it is the personality of the man which to-day, even more than his honored public career, touches the hearts of the American people. The simplicity of his character and habits is recalled, and it is seen that change of circumstances made no change in the man. His natural dignity, gentleness, patience and conscientiousness he brought with him unaltered from his quiet home in Canton to the high places where these qualities were seen and admired by all the world. Devoid of ostentation, with no thought of self beyond the satisfaction which came from the remembrance of friends and the faithful discharge of the duties to hand, William McKinley was certainly a person of noble simplicity, integrity and directness in the world as we find it to-day constituted,

The most beautiful of all the engaging qualities which came to endear the man to the people was that of his constant and tender domestic devotion. It is the remembrance of that most exquisite trait of an altogether lovable character which perhaps most deeply of all now touches the great heart of the people.

Just as Abraham Lincoln's personality grew with time upon the understanding and affectionate regard of his own generation—and became a guiding star to generations to follow—so will the recollection of William McKinley's personal virtues exercise a healthy, inspiring and cheerful influence upon humanity as long as the history of the worthiest spirits of the Republic shall be written or read.

THE NEW PRESIDENT.

While Vice President Roosevelt was charged with the powers and duties of the President under the Constitution upon the moment of President McKinley's death the administration of the oath to him at Buffalo Saturday constitutes the formal recognition of his succession. He assumes the high office under conditions which present at once a drawback and an incentive. The public mind, now filled with profound grief, naturally dwells on the virtues and his knowledge of and sympathy with the late President's aims will be a guide and stimulant to President Roosevelt.

Despite the universal grief it is to be recognized that in President Roosevelt's assumption of the office there is the highest promise. The youngest man who has ever assumed the Presidency, he has been so long before the public that his character is well known. His integrity is above the breath of suspicion, his principles are upright his aims are elevated. The only aspects which have ever given rise to criticism are but the extreme manifestations of noble impulses. While his ardent nature has sometimes in the warmth of oratory carried him to undue lengths it is notable that in the responsibility of office he has tempered his impulses with care and conservatism.

The heavy responsibilities of the great office with which he is now charged will naturally tend to steady his impulsive spirit and sober his ardent pursuit of high aims. But what may well be expected is that the pure principles and unspotted integrity which have marked his career so far will continue to guide his public life. That Colonel and Governor Roosevelt has been ambitious is beyond denial; but it was the ambition that will not stoop to sordid means. President Roosevelt will no doubt be inspired by the highest ambitions for his administration, and he may be expected to seek their realization in the best way possible.

One of the most forceful and original men who has attained that position, admittedly governed by the best ideals, there is every reason to expect good of his Presidency. He comes to that office almost, if not indeed absolutely, free from obligations in any quarter excepting to the public. He is not likely, therefore, to be influenced by any political schemers. His well-known principles on the divorce of the public service from the spoils of politics are likely, indeed, to produce results unsatisfactory to the political class. But that does not diminish the belief that his course will be for the public welfare, and will earn the public approval.

While sharing with the nation the sorrow for the tragedy which brings him to the Presidency President Roosevelt may claim the confidence and support of the people in the worthy and able direction of the national Government. If high principle, unspotted character, personal force and lofty aims can make a successful President the administration of Roosevelt should have an admirable record.

PROCLAMATION!

As a fitting tribute to the memory of William McKinley, late President of the United States, and in pursuance of the proclamation of the Governor of this Commonwealth, issued September the 16th, appointing "Thursday, Sept. 19th, as a day of mourning and prayer throughout the State," it is requested that the people of this town suspend the pursuit of all vocations and that all places of business be closed at 12 o'clock noon to remain closed the rest of the day.

EDMUND BLANCHARD,
Burgess.

Bellefonte, Sept. 17th, 1901.

THE United States has not only become the creditor of Great Britain, but is rapidly becoming that of all other European countries. In time this will radically affect the financial conditions and centres of the world. The supremacy of the city of New York as the financial centre of the world seems to be in actual sight.

THE fact that the public is associating anarchy and yellow journalism in the same category seems to indicate that the time has come when a halt will be called on both. The pulpit and the people everywhere have risen in denunciation of them.

War of Caterpillars.

Directions have been issued by the department of agriculture for making war upon the caterpillar. There should be no delay in following them, or in proceeding against this pest according to some one of the various methods suggested by other authorities, for suggestions have not been wanting, and have varied widely. In Philadelphia city squares and in Fairmount park the trees are being sprayed with Paris green, and the trunks scraped for some distance above the ground wherever the caterpillars have attacked them. When the winter trimming is undertaken an effort will be made to destroy the cocoons, so that there will be no increase of caterpillars next year in those trees. This proposed destruction of the cocoons appear to be well planned, as there is a prospect that we will have many more caterpillars next year if this precaution is not taken, but for the present the active pests have to be fought.

Lord's Prayer on His Lips.

President McKinley passed under the anasthetic at the first operation, whispering the words of the Lord's Prayer. The scene was recalled later by one of the physicians present then.

"There was no hypocritical assumption of religion," said the physician; "but when we had administered ether, and just as he was sinking into unconsciousness, we saw his lips moving. Bending over that we might catch what might prove to be his last words, we heard, faintly but distinctly a portion of the Lord's Prayer. "'Thy kingdom come, Thy will be done, were the words we heard as he passed into unconsciousness."

Monument in Memory of Jennie Wade.

The Woman's Relief Corps of Ia[illegible] dedicated Monday, September 16, a monument which the organization has erected at Gettysburg in memory of Miss Jennie Wade, the only citizen of the town killed in the battle of Gettysburg. Miss Wade, who was 21 years of age at the time of her death, was struck by a Confederate bullet in the north side of the little story-and-a-half double brick house on Baltimore street, near the National cemetery.

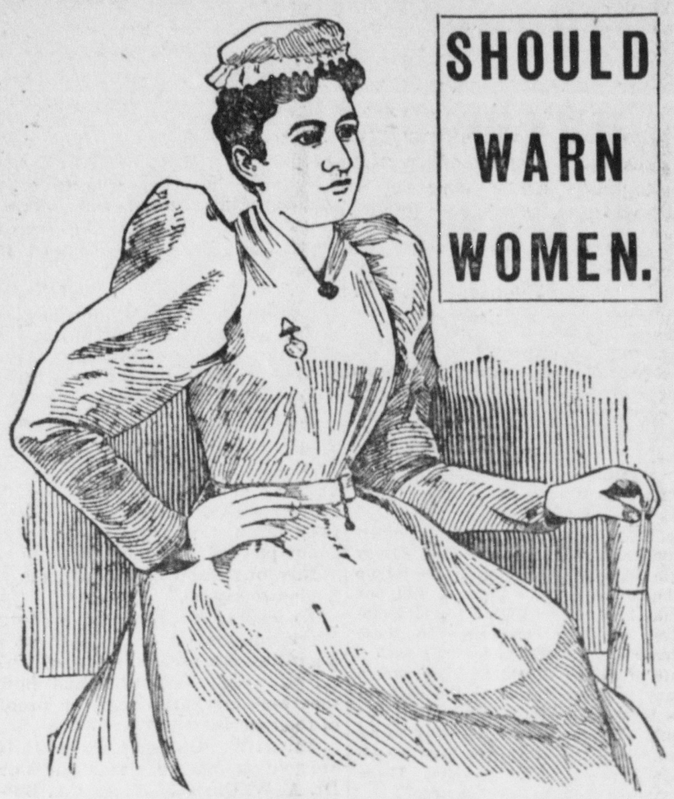
SHOULD WARN WOMEN.



MISS LUCY ANNIE HEISER, OF MINNEAPOLIS, MINN.

Miss Lucy Annie Heiser, a graduated nurse of nine years' experience, trained and graduated from the Homeopathic Hospital of Minneapolis, Minn., writes as follows:

Albert Lea, Minn., Nov. 8, 1899.

The Peruna Medicine Co., Columbus, Ohio:

Gentlemen---"Although my school does not believe in patent medicines, I have found it to be a fact that Peruna is a grand and valuable medicine. I have known it to cure Mrs. Sampson, suffering with an inflamed womb, aggravated by malaria, after the doctors had failed to help her. Another of my former patients suffered with a complication of female diseases; she was so thin, nothing but skin and bones, but Peruna cured her and she is to-day in good health and good flesh. Facts prove that Peruna revives lost strength and restores to the sick that most wonderful blessing of life.—health."

From Mrs. Amanda Shumaker, who has charge of the Grammar Department of the Public Schools, of Columbia City, Wash., also Past Grand of Independent Order of Good Templars. Dr. Hatman received the following letter:

COLUMBIA CITY, WASH.

"I can speak only good words of the repeated benefits I have had from the use of Peruna.

"Too constant application to work last winter caused me to have severe head and backache and dragging pains. I could not stop my work, neither was I fit to go on. Reading of the beneficial results from the use of Peruna I purchased a bottle and within a few days after using it, began to feel better.

"I constantly improved and before the seventh bottle was completely used, all pains were gone, my strength was restored, and I now seem ten years' younger.

"If I get tired or feel bad, Peruna at once helps me, and I feel you deserve praise for placing such a conscientious medicine before a suffering public."

"My physician prescribed different medicines, none of which seemed to help me any until a club associate advised me to try Peruna, as it cured her of constitutional headache and stomach troubles. I at once ordered a bottle and before it was used, felt greatly improved.

"I have taken four bottles and for two months have been entirely free from these maladies. Several of my friends are using Peruna with beneficial results, especially in cases of troubles with the kidneys and other pelvic organs, together with weaknesses peculiar to women."

Herding Cattle in Clearfield County.

In the great wilderness south and east of Penfield, Clearfield county, are 1,500 head of cattle pasturing, in charge of Wilson Wallace, Edward Melfridge, McClellan Selfridge, Duke Johnson and John Hoover as herders.

The timber has been cleared from the ranges and the second growth is getting luxuriant. The grass is growing finely in the old log roads and hence pasturage is good.

To keep the cattle from wandering too far miles of fence of old logs and brush are built through the woods. At the close of autumn the cattle are driven home to their various owners and the herders are paid so much per head for looking after them during the pasturing season.

At present there is a serious condition of health among the cattle. In the past few weeks 25 head have been found dead. Herders attribute the mortality to the cattle eating a worm that infests the sassafras leaf but they are contemplating asking the State Agricultural department to investigate the disease. The dead cattle are piled up and burned.

Young Man Killed at Van Scoyoc.

On Friday afternoon at 4 o'clock Robert Welch was instantly killed at Van Scoyoc station. Mr. Welch is a section hand on the Tyrone & Clearfield railroad and on account of the disability of his father Robert had been occupying the place since Wednesday morning.

At the time of the accident Robert and other hands of the gang were in the act of cutting a rail, and when the heavy iron was thrown, to break it, by some means the young man was caught and he fell with his head directly under the rail, crushing it and causing almost instant death. The rail weighed 850 pounds. The lifeless body was picked up and conveyed to the family home at Vail.

Deceased was born near Stormstown on the 25th of April 1887, and at death was 14 years, 4 months and 18 days old. He is survived by his father, two sisters and two brothers.

Mr. William Valence East Lamb street, Night watchman, says: "For 2 years or more off and on, I had trouble with my back and pains in the upper part of my spine accompanied by a disagreeable feeling in my head and acute lameness right over my kidneys. At first I thought it was my liver but later found it arose from the kidneys not acting properly. I read of the many cures that had been made in Bellefonte by Doan's Kidney Pills and I got them at F. Potts Green's drug store. They stopped the annoyance from the kidneys and removed the lameness and aching in my back. They did me any amount of good and I do not hesitate to recommend them."

Died from Typhoid Fever.

Mrs. Catharine Spotts, wife of S. M. Spotts, died at the family home at Tyrone at 5 o'clock Monday morning. She was afflicted with typhoid fever and had been ailing about a month, though only bedfast about two weeks. She was aged at death 39 years, 6 months and 14 days.

The deceased's maiden name was Catharine Cowher. She was the daughter of Samuel and Sarah Cowher and was born in Centre county on the 2nd of March, 1862. Her father was a soldier in the Civil war and died soon after the close of that great struggle.

She was married to S. M. Spotts about 21 years ago. The family removed to Tyrone about five years since. Surviving are the husband, one daughter and three sons, viz: Mrs. George Alonzo, of Tyrone, and Clifford O., Jacob and Ray, at the family home. Besides the mother of the deceased, one sister, Mrs. Frank Woodring, survives and resides in Tyrone. Two half-brothers and one half-sister survive also: Thomas Newman, Frank Newman and Miss Nora Newman, all of Philipsburg.

Deceased was a consistent member of the Presbyterian church of Tyrone, and a faithful wife and mother and good neighbor. The family is sorely afflicted. The head of the household, Mr. Spotts, is just recovering from an attack of the fever; one son, Jacob, who suffered an attack of the same disease, is now convalescent, while Ray, the youngest of the family, aged 4 years, is now suffering from the disease.

The funeral was held Wednesday forenoon. A short service being held at the home in the morning and at 9 o'clock the remains were conveyed to Port Matilda, where services were conducted in the Presbyterian church by Rev. A. J. Weisley and Rev. J. D. W. Deavor, after which interment was made.

—D. C. Rannels of Port Royal brought suit against the Pennsylvania railroad for damages resulting from the destruction of his store goods by fire, it being alleged that the fire was caused by negligence of the railway company in not having a proper spark arrester on the engine which caused the fire. —The grand chief of the order of Knights of the Golden Eagle, issued a circular under date of September 14th, announcing and mourning the death of President McKinley, and ordering that the regalia and charter of the grand castles be draped in mourning for thirty days. The assassin Czolgosz, was a member of the order, but was peremptorily expelled on receipt of the news of his diabolical act.

—William H. Repper, Pittsburg, was to have been married to Miss Annie McGarvey of Shirleysburg, on Sunday, but at the last moment the groom telegraphed that the wedding would not take place. Everything was in readiness for the ceremony; the parson and guests had arrived, and the marriage feast was prepared. Repper assigned no reason for his strange action. Miss McGarvey is prostrated over the affair, and is under a doctor's care.

Hutchinson—Snyder.

Columbia, Sept. 11.—Miss Jennie Blanche Snyder, daughter of N. D. Snyder, and Edwin Gardiner Hutchinson, of Swissvale, Pa., were married Wednesday evening in the First Methodist Church by Rev. William Powick. The bride's attendants were Miss Maude Wilson, maid of honor, and Misses Caroline B. Smith, of York; Bertha H. Curry, of Warrior's Mark; Harriet M. Nagle and Mayme Aucker, of Shamokin, were the bridesmaids. The best man was Lewis Hutchinson, of Pittsburg, a brother of the bridegroom, and Samuel B. Hare, of Altoona; W. Harrison Walker, of Bellefonte; Raymond Hutchinson, of Warrior's Mark, and Cleon N. Berntheizel, of Columbia, were ushers. After the ceremony a brilliant reception was held at the residence of the bride's parents.

Leading Wellsboro Citizen Dies.

Frederick K. Wright, a citizen of Wellsboro since 1859, died in that place Wednesday afternoon at the age of 66 years. He was a leading business man of the country and a former director of the local bank, water company and loan association. He was a lumberman, tanner, merchant and a real estate owner. Mr. Wright was the Democratic candidate for congress in this, the Sixteenth district, in 1892, and was postmaster of Wellsboro from 1895 to 1899.—Lock Haven Democrat

This Was a Funeral Horse.

Jersey Shore Herald: An old horse died at Williamsport last week with a very peculiar record. It was owned in its younger days by an undertaker who used it in a hearse. For many years it was the property of an old preacher who used it to go to funerals, and then he sold it to a marble cutter and for the past ten years it has hauled tombstones around over the country. Now the horse itself is dead.

RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT.

Passed by Council to the Memory of William McKinley.

There was no business session of Council Monday night on account of the death of President McKinley. The members met and Mr. Potter offered the following resolutions which were entered upon the minutes after which they adjourned until next Friday night at 7:30 o'clock.

Minutes adopted by the Council of the Borough of Bellefonte upon the death of President William McKinley.

In the death of President McKinley the people of the United States have sustained an irreparable loss. The whole world stands aghast at the horrible crime committed on the 6th day of September 1901, which resulted in removing from the Presidency of the United States our beloved President.

We cannot at this early day more than express the sense of sorrow and sadness which pervade the hearts of all classes and conditions of men. During his term as President, many complicated national and international questions arose, and in the solution of them he was wise, discreet, considerate, conscientious and firm. The preservation of the "Monroe Doctrine" was safe in his hands. Under his guidance and leadership the sanctity of the doctrine that no hostile nation could be permitted to interfere with or endanger the liberties of our country, by the establishment or maintenance of a foreign government inimical to our institutions in or upon the Western Continent, was fully maintained,

His direction of national affairs in the establishment of peace in Cuba and the restoration of that Island in its government, the acquisition of Porto Rica, the control for the time being of the Philippine Islands in order to establish proper government there, has met with the approbation of all classes of people in the United States; and during the War with Spain, the country looked to President McKinley with confidence and with assurance, that in all his official conduct, he would be governed solely by principles of right and righteousness.

He has kept faith with the American people. Through his wise administration of the government, peace now prevails throughout our land and prosperity to its utmost borders. His administration today stands as a model of purity and stability. His name is a synonym with honesty and patriotism. His life has been blameless, and with all his intercourse with the people, while he has preserved the dignity of his high office, he has met each person with whom he came in contact as a brother.

In his domestic life he set an example worthy of all imitation, and today we mourn his departure through the full breadth of our land. Why a kind Providence permitted his removal by violence is inscrutable to us, and yet we know that in the Divine economy the Almighty has in reservation for our people and our government its preservation and perpetuity.

While we mourn the death of the first citizen of our land, we deplore the fiendish violence which caused his death, and we earnestly recommend that more stringent laws shall be enacted, that will have for their direct object the extermination of any and all anarchists, not only from our own land, but from the face of the earth. We also deeply deplore the reckless spirit and reckless utterances which appear too often in public journals, giving a license or a liberty to attack any and all citizens, and thereby inflaming the minds of cranks, fiends and murderers to commit crime.

Be it therefore Resolved by Council that this Minute be entered upon our records and in recognition of the grief we all feel, we recommend that Council do now adjourn.

Public School Memorial Service.

The Public schools of Bellefonte will hold memorial exercises in honor of our late President William McKinley this Thursday, morning beginning at 10 o'clock. An appropriate program has been prepared. All friends of the schools are invited to be present.

Dr. H. C. Holloway, Senator Heinle, Col. W. F. Reeder, J. C. Meyer, Esq and D. F. Fortney, Esq. will address the schools at the Brick building and Dr. W. P. Shriner, Rev. W. H. Brown, Clement Dale, Esq. and J. Kennedy Johnston, Esq. will speak at the Stone building.

Banks Will Be Closed Today.

The several banks in Bellefonte will respect the request of the Governor of the Commonwealth for a suspension of business this Thursday the day of President McKinley's funeral at Canton, and will close their doors to all business.

For a McKinley Memorial Arch.

At an informal meeting of 100 prominent citizens of Chicago, held Monday afternoon, a proposition to start a movement for the erection of a magnificent memorial arch for President McKinley at Washington was made.

—John M. Cook, son of Rev. J. D. Cook, of Renovo, who has for some time been employed on the Philadelphia "Inquirer," has been promoted to the position of general news editor.

—Sydney A. Rich, aged 20 years, of Scalp Level, was accidently shot while in the woods with three companions, on Sunday, and died a few minutes after having been carried to his home.

THE NATION MOURNS!

of the dead president might be afforded the comfort of a last glance at his features and that the people whom he loved and who loved him might pass the bier for the same purpose. At half-past 12 the crowds began to file through the rotunda, and during the six hours in which the body was lying in state it seemed that 50,000 people viewed the remains.

At 4 o'clock a frightful calamity was narrowly averted at the east front of the capitol. For hours the vast throng of people had been massed in front of the capitol awaiting an opportunity to enter the rotunda. When the doors were opened tens of thousands of people rushed almost frantically to the main staircase. The police and military guards were swept aside and almost in a twinkling there was a tremendous crush at the foot of the great staircase.

The immense throng swept backward and forward like the surging of a mighty sea. Women and children, a few of the latter babes in arms, were caught in the crowd and many were badly hurt. Strong men held children and even women high above the heads of the surging crowd to protect them from bodily injury. Despite the efforts of the police and military, and the cooler heads in the throng, approximately, a hundred people were injured, some seriously hurt, some carried into the rotunda and into various adjoining apartments of the capitol, where treatment was given them. A number were hurried to hospitals in the ambulances, but the majority went unassisted to their homes. After the crush had been abated tattered pieces of men's and women's wearing apparel were found. Watches, pocketbooks, keys and knives were picked up.

When the remains of the dead president were finally closed forever to the view of Washington people the cavalry escort again was formed and conveyed them to the special train which carried the body to Canton.

The magnificent display of floral offerings numbering no less than 125 pieces and making the most remarkable floral tribute ever seen here, were taken to the station from the capitol in carriages and wagons and there placed aboard a special car which had been provided for them. Three sections, comprising in all 20 passenger coaches, were necessary to accommodate all those who accepted invitations to make the journey to Canton.

Special to REPUBLICAN.

CANTON, O., Sept. 18.—The McKinley funeral train arrived in Canton a little later than schedule time. The city is simply overcrowded and the militia was called out to aid the police in restraining the crush at the depot. The body of the late President was taken to the Court House shortly after noon to lie in state.

The entire route over which the funeral train passed on its sad journey to Canton was lined with people the night long. Mill and mine workers were conspicuous among the vast multitude who witnessed the passing of the funeral train. Women knelt in prayer at many places through which the train passed and manifestations of grief and sorrow were in evidence during the entire journey.

Mrs. McKinley stood the trip very well and is bearing up bravely and with remarkable fortitude.

Special trains are hourly arriving in Canton and it is believed that several hundred thousand people will pay the last tribute of honor and respect to the Nation's dead ruler tomorrow. The President's old regiment was a conspicuous arrival today.

If you'll make a diagnosis when you're feeling out and dreary,
As you would with any everyday disease;
If you'll simply question science as to why you're glum and weary
And everything seems dull and ill at ease,
Perhaps you will discover, after devious calculations,
The cause of all these symptoms which appall,
And you'll smile as you reflect, in spite of various irritations,
That it's nothing but the weather after all.

You'll find a sigh denoting neither sorrow nor contrition;
A tear drop's not indicative of care.
They are products of the meteorological condition,
Of extra moisture that is in the air.
So perhaps it's not in reason fortune's chance to be reviling
Or to vow life's store of happiness is small,
For when the sun comes out again, again we will be smiling;
It's nothing but the weather after all.

SPIRIT SLATE WRITING.

How the Mysterious Sentences Are Prepared In Advance.

Spiritualistic slate writing, if cleverly done, always makes a marked impression on a magician's audience because it utterly baffles their efforts to detect the trick. They see a small cabinet suspended above the stage by means of cords or ribbons. It has an open front and is empty. The magician turns it around so that every part of it may be seen and taps it inside and out with his wand to show that it is hollow.

On a stand near by he has a small easel, a common school slate, a bottle of india ink with a quill pen in it and a few sheets of ordinary white writing paper. All these he passes around among the audience for examination. Then he fixes a sheet of the paper to the slate by means of wafers, places the slate on the easel and the easel in the cabinet, together with the bottle of ink, the latter having the pen still in it.

Having allowed the audience to see the articles thus arranged in the cabinet, he throws a large silk handkerchief over it. Mysterious sounds are immediately heard, and the cabinet shakes as if some living thing had entered it. When the sounds and the shaking cease, he removes the handkerchief, showing an inscription written in bold black letters on the paper and the pen not in the ink bottle, but lying on the bottom of the cabinet. He then removes the paper from the slate and passes it around for examination, when the writing is immediately recognized as having been done with India ink.

The explanation of the trick is simple. The writing was done in advance by the performer, the fluid used being a solution of sulphuric acid of the purest quality. To make the solution 50 drops of the concentrated acid are added to one ounce of filtered water. Writing done with this solution is invisible until exposed to heat. When so exposed, it comes out perfectly black, looking exactly like dried India ink.

The heat is applied by means of an electric current running over wire with which the slate is wound. The cords by which the cabinet is suspended conceal copper wires, which conduct the current to the slate. Black silk threads suitably attached enable the performer to make the sounds in the cabinet, to cause the cabinet to shake and to jerk the pen out of the ink bottle.

Several sheets of paper are prepared in advance, each with a different inscription, the performer telling one inscription from another by secretly marked pin pricks.—New York Herald.

Keeping at It.

There is a very old but very good story about a boy who was engaged one winter day in putting a ton of coal into a cellar. His only implement was a small fire shovel. Noticing this, a benevolent old gentleman expressed surprise and commiseration.

"My son," said the gentleman, "you surely do not expect to put in all that coal with that little shovel?"

"Oh, yes, I do," replied the boy cheerfully. "All I have to do is to keep at it."

There is a lesson in this story for young and old, and it is exemplified in the lives of the great men of the world. It is a mistake to suppose that the best work of the world is done by people of great strength and many opportunities. "Keeping at it" is the secret of success. —Exchange.

Left Handed Medicine.

An Atchison druggist tells this story and declares that it is true: He had tonsilitis, but did not send for a doctor, as he knew he would be all right as soon as the swelling "broke." But his wife was worried and insisted on sending for a doctor. When the doctor arrived, he looked through his medicine case, and said he had nothing suitable for the patient; that the medicine he had was for the right side, whereas the swelling in the throat was on the left side. Then he hurried away to get his left handed medicine.—Atchison Globe.

Catching a Feminine Fish.

"Do you really think there are mermaids in the sea?"

"Certainly," said the dime museum man.

"Then why hasn't anybody besides you succeeded in catching one?"

"Because nobody else was smart enough to bait a hook with the latest style of Paris hat," was the answer.—Washington Star.

CONFECTIONS FROM GRAIN.

Wheat and Malt Used In the Manufacture of Candy.

A manufacturing plant in New Jersey, formerly used as a manilla paper mill, is now operated by a corporation engaged in the unique industry of making confections from wheat and malt, about the last materials in the world one would expect to find in candy.

In the earlier stages of the process the grain is fanned, ground and mixed in proper proportions. Then it is cooked to a mash, from which a thin sirup is squeezed by hydraulic presses and conducted to a great iron evaporator. Thence the sirup is carried in pipes to a vacuum pan. Here it is vigorously stirred and further evaporated. The thickened sirup is drawn off into huge, shallow tin pans, where it is cooled and hardened. Plain or flavored with peppermint, the mass is a rich golden brown in color. Combined with chocolate it is dark as the familiar caramel in the candy shops.

When a batch of goods is needed for the market, the stock in the pans is broken into pieces and put into a boiler surrounded by a steam jacket. It is reduced by heat to the consistency of taffy at an old fashioned candy pull. Skilled workmen shape the mass into long strips that lie like golden snakes on a board table.

They are fed to a cutting machine, a noisy little monster with an insatiable appetite for sweets. You could almost cover the machine with a hat, yet it turns out malt creamlets nearly as fast as a Maxim gun hurls a storm of bullets. The boys who carry the creamlets from the machine to the tables where they are wrapped have little time for meditation.—Chautauqua Herald.

EDITOR STOREY'S NOTION.

Theory on Which He Remitted a Fine and Raised a Salary.

"I was slashing copy on old Storey's Chicago Times many years ago," said one of the guests at a reunion dinner. "We had a correspondent in an Illinois town who simply would not schedule his matter, but as he generally sent good stuff we let him run on, slashing his stuff to suit the exigencies of the night. Besides, his stuff always suggested good headlines, and that was one of Storey's hobbies.

"On one occasion the correspondent sent up about 700 words which went into 100, with nothing over. On the 100 words I constructed a headline which was right up to the mark. The next day I was instructed to tell the man who made out the checks for the country correspondents to knock $5 off the correspondent's pay.

"When he received his check, he wrote to Mr. Storey saying that under ordinary circumstances he wouldn't kick about the deduction, but in this particular instance he did because the fool headline over the item made by a fool telegraph editor had infuriated the man whose name was mentioned in the dispatch and brought on a fight between him and the correspondent, the result of which was that the correspondent was fined $5 in the police court.

"Mr. Storey was a very just man when you got at him the right way. He instructed the cashier to send the correspondent the amount of the fine and raised my salary because the headline I wrote had caused a row. That was his way of encouraging a headline writer."—New York Sun.

Cities Without Slums.

Berlin has none of the horrible areas which disgrace London and so many other English towns. Even in the poorest quarters the dwellings are good, the streets well paved, clean and comparatively wide. It also has no slums in the English sense of the word. Kioto, in Japan, and Sevastopol, in Russia, both boast an absence of slums and paupers. In England the largest manufacturing town which is free from this reproach is probably Huddersfield, and after that would come Leamington Spa and London by the Sea.—Pearson's Weekly.

There They Were.

"I am here, gentlemen," explained the pickpocket to his fellow prisoners, "as the result of a moment of abstraction." "And I am here," said the incendiary, "because of an unfortunate habit of making light of things." "And I," said the forger, " on account of a simple desire to make a name for myself." "And I," added the burglar, "through nothing but taking advantage of an opening which offered in a large mercantile establishment in town."—Kansas City Independent.

Sleeping Rooms.

In all sleeping apartments where carpet is used, in the interest of health, an uncovered painted margin should entirely surround the room so as to prevent the accumulation of dust, possibly containing dangerous microbes in the cracks. If this border is regularly washed with water containing a disinfectant, it will also aid materially in purifying the room.

Not Overelated.

"I suppose," said the effusive lady who was visiting the Mecktons, "that your wife is sure that she has the best husband that ever lived."

"Yes," answered Meckton, with something like a sigh. "But at the same time I don't believe she thinks that is saying much for me."—Washington Star.

Advice From Way Up.

"Understand me," said the balloon to the parachute, "I wouldn't for the world encourage drinking habits in the young and innocent, but at the same time I don't think a drop would hurt you in the least."

Whereupon the parachute dropped.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

FINICKY TURKISH LADIES.

They Are Very Careful About What They Take In Their Hands.

Our Constantinople correspondent writes: It is not generally known that there exists among Turkish ladies of high class a kind of caste feeling similar to that prevailing among Hindoos. It takes the form of a fear of contamination from the outer world and is only observed, as far as I know, by those who cannot afford to keep servants in sufficient numbers. Before meals ladies always wash their hands at a tap from which the water runs into a marble basin. They will turn on the tap when they are just going to wash, but when they have finished they let the water run till somebody shuts it off, as to do it themselves would make them unclean. They cannot open or shut a door, as the handle would be unclean, so a slave is generally kept handy for the purpose.

One of these fastidious ladies was talking to a small niece the other day who had just received a present of a beautiful doll from Paris. The child presently laid the doll on the lady's lap, who was horrified and ordered the child to take it away. As the little girl would not move it and no servant was near, and the lady would be defiled by touching a doll that was brought from abroad, the only thing she could think of was to jump up and let the doll fall, which broke to pieces. The same lady will not open a letter coming by post, but a servant opens it and holds it near her for her to read. If her handkerchief falls to the ground, it is immediately destroyed or given away, so that she should not use it again. This curious state of exclusiveness or fanaticism exists, I am told, in many of the large harems. Among men it is not practiced.—London Telegraph.

ANIMAL LIFE.

He Was Satisfied.

A farmer entered an office in central New York and sent this message to a woman in Canada: "Will you be my wife? Please answer quick by telegraph." Although he waited the rest of the day, he got no answer, but the next morning he got a night dispatch, sent collect, but favorable. The operator in expressing his sympathy said, "Little rough to keep you in suspense so long."

"Look a-here, sonny," the farmer remarked, "I'll stand all the suspense. Any woman that'll hold back her answer all day to a proposal of marriage, jest so thet she kin send it half rate at night, is economical enough to make up after I git her for all the loss of time and injury to feelin's I've suffered waitin'!"—Exchange.

Icebergs.

The captain of an ocean steamer is often warned of the proximity of icebergs by the men in the engine room. When a ship enters water considerably colder than that through which it has been going its propeller runs faster, and as such water surrounds the vicinity of icebergs for many miles the engineers know when the propeller's action is greatly accelerated without any increase of the steam power icebergs may be expected. Of course the thermometer is the most useful indicator of icebergs.

Two Calamitous Fires.

The two most calamitous fires ever known anywhere in the world occurred in the United States within 13 months of each other. In the first of these, in Chicago, on Oct. 8, 9, 1871, the property loss was $200,000,000, and in the second, in Boston, Nov. 9, 1872, $80,000,000 of property was consumed. In Chicago 100,000 persons were left without homes and 200 were killed. Chicago's heads the list of the world's destructive conflagrations.

DRIVEN TO MADNESS.

TIMES WHEN AN EXCESS OF JOY IS LINKED WITH INSANITY.

Some of the Saddest Cases of Lunacy Are Those Where the Mind Is Unable to Stand the Shock of Sudden Good Tidings.

It is no exaggeration to assert, said an asylum doctor of long and varied experience, that there are scores of men and women in our asylums who have literally been sent there through excess of joy. Many of these cases which are, in my opinion, the saddest of all have come under my own observation.

I remember in the very first asylum with which I was connected one of the patients was a strikingly handsome and very well educated man, who was as sane as you or I except on one point. He was really a man of considerable wealth, but his delusion was that he was a pauper, and he would tell the most pitiful tales of his destitution, begging, with tears in his eyes, for a few coppers with which to buy bread.

According to the story told me, he was the only son of a wealthy merchant. In his youth he had fallen among evil companions and had led such a dissolute life that his father not only threatened to disinherit him, but forbade him ever to enter his house again. After that he seems to have sunk into the lowest depths of poverty until he was glad to earn a few coppers by selling papers or matches in the streets.

It was at this last and lowest stage that news came to him that his father had died intestate and that he was heir to all his vast fortune. The sudden news completely turned the man's brain and brought on such a condition of excitement that he had to be sent to an asylum, and when he calmed down again he had lost all recollection of his good fortune, and nothing can shake his delusion that he is on the verge of starvation.

Another patient in the same asylum was a young and in his lucid moments a most intelligent fellow, whose "brain was turned," as the saying is, on learning that he had passed an examination. He had sat for the matriculation examination at the University of London, on passing which he had set his heart and had asked a friend in London to wire the result as soon as the names were screened at Burlington House.

About three weeks later came a fatal telegram, "Failed—sorry," which sent the young man into the lowest depths of despair, for he was too old to sit again. Not many hours later, however, came another telegram, "Passed honors —very sorry crush so great did not see name this morning." The revulsion of feeling was so great that the student's reason gave way, and he became so violent in his excitement that he had to be confined. Fortunately he was not with us long and is now, I am glad to know, doing very well as a solicitor.

Disappointed love sends many people to asylums, but it is very seldom that success in wooing drives a man mad. It had this strange effect, however, on one of my late patients. The girl he loved had gone out to India to keep house for her brother before he had screwed up his courage to the point of proposing to her, but an offer followed by mail very quickly after her.

Weeks and months passed, and no answer came to the impatient lover until, after waiting two years in despair, he became engaged to a girl who had nothing but her money bags to recommend her and for whom he had not a particle of love. Scarcely, however, was his fate sealed than he received the long despaired of letter from India, accepting his offer and explaining that the girl's brother had received and mislaid the letter, which had only just been found and had come into her hands.

Within an hour of the receipt of this letter the man was a raving maniac, and although his condition is improved I doubt whether he will ever recover his reason.

In another remarkable case it was the joy at seeing her husband again that robbed a lady patient of her reason. Her husband was the captain of a merchant ship which was reported to have gone down with all hands. The widow had deeply mourned her husband for nearly a year, when one day on returning from a walk she found him sitting in the drawing room as hale and robust as ever.

With a shriek she fell unconscious on the floor, and when she recovered her reason was gone. It seems that her husband, after floating for some time, had been picked up by a passing "tramp" and had been landed on the west coast of Africa, from which he had returned home by the first available vessel.—London Tit-Bits.

'Tis Different In England.

"I suppose it's all right for Americans who visit Europe to talk with an English accent when they come home," reflected Uncle Allen Sparks, "but you never hear of any Englishmen talking through their noses and saying 'I guess' after they have spent a season in the United States and gone back home."—Chicago Tribune.

Hope.

"Say, pop, I've got to write a composition on 'Hope.' What is 'Hope,' anyway?"

"Hope, my boy, is the joyous expectation of being able to dodge our just deserts."—Life.

FLOWER AND TREE.

Plants cannot live if deprived of their leaves.

Tea plants at the age of 7 years yield 700 pounds of tea to the acre.

The date palm requires a hot, dry air, but moisture about the roots and plenty of it.

Palms never live more than 250 years. Ivy has been known to live 450, chestnut 800, oak 1,600 and yew 2,880.

An oak tree of average size, with 700,000 leaves, lifts from the earth about 123 tons of water during the five months it is in leaf.

Jasmine is an Indian shrub. Its starry, wax white blossoms are indescribably sweet. All the burning pain and passion and pathos and mystery of the Hindoo race seem to rise up to you in its breath.

There is a rose tree with a trunk 2 feet 9 inches in circumference in a Ventura garden in California. It is a Lamarque, has been growing a quarter of a century and yielded over 21,000 blooms in 1895.

Cents East and West.

"There is always a scarcity of pennies in the west," says an official of the Philadelphia mint, "and a superabundance of them in the east. Every little while the banks out there set up a hoot and cry for pennies, but our banks here are ever glad to rid themselves of their surplusage in these coins. It is difficult to see why such a state of things should be. I'm sure a penny is just as dear to the easterner's heart as to the westerner's. One would no more throw a penny away than would the other, yet here we always have too many pennies. There they never seem to have enough."

HAVE TO GIVE UP.

ITS ALL OVER WHEN NERVOUS SICK HEADACHE COMES TO YOUNG OR OLD—EVERYTHING STOPS AND NOTHING GOES ON BUT THE NERVOUS SICK HEADACHES.

If anything will engender a disregard for even life itself it is continued or oft repeated attacks of nervous sick headache. You may be able to partially describe it but the English language fails to fully do it justice. Its misery so concentrated, so condensed, so prostrating that all else is enveloped in its meshes.

Mrs. John H. Beck, of No. 115 3rd St., North, Philipsburg, Pa., says: "Dr. A. W. Chase's Nerve Pills are just fine. I used to suffer all the time with nervous sick headaches, terrible headaches that weakens one and makes one nervous and trembly. I was told of the Nerve Pills and got a box and the result was remarkable. The medicine stopped the headaches completely. A single box did this for me and I am only too glad to say so."

THE CENTAUR COMPANY, 77 MURRAY STREET, NEW YORK CITY.

Son Gravely Accused.

On Friday, Aug. 29, James Groves, a prominent farmer residing at Rockdale Mills, near DuBois, fell from the roof of a barn and sustained injuries from which he died within a few hours. The funeral took place the following Sunday, and that day rumors as to how Mr. Groves met his death began to be circulated in the neighborhood.

The body of the man was exhumed Monday and a jury investigated. A verdict was rendered to the effect that the elder Groves met his death by being pushed from the barn by his son, Ernest. The young man was arrested and taken to the Brookville jail.

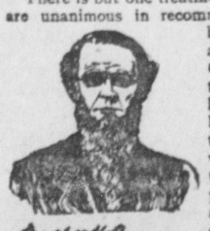
Itching Scalp.

Scald Head and the Most Violent Forms of Eczema and Salt Rheum Promptly and Thoroughly Cured by Dr. Chase's Ointment.

Among small children, scald head and similar itching skin diseases are most prevalent, and the worst feature is that these ailments, which are apparently trivial at first, almost invariably develop into chronic eczema if neglected.

There is but one treatment that physicians are unanimous in recommending for scald heads and eczema, and that is Dr. Chase's Ointment, the great antiseptic healer. It promptly stops the distressing itching which accompanies these diseases and positively produces a thorough and complete cure.



Scores and thousands of men and women stand ready to vouch for the merits of Dr. Chase's Ointment. It has brought about some of the most marvelous cures ever recorded. In justice to yourself and family, you cannot do without it in your home.

Mr. J. H. Grant, 716 Joseph Campan avenue, Detroit, Mich., writes: "For three years I have been troubled by an intense itching on my body. So terrible was it at times that I could get no rest night or day. I tried all kinds of ointments and blood purifiers, but could get no relief. Mr. H. A. Nicolai of 379 Division street recommended Dr. Chase's Ointment. A few applications stopped the itching and I have felt nothing since."

Baby Eczema.

Mr. F. S. Rose of 133 Sixteenth street, Buffalo, N. Y., writes: "Our baby boy suffered for some time with that wretched eczema, and we were unable to find anything to cure or even relieve his pain. A few applications of Dr. A. W. Chase's Ointment stopped the itching and healed the sores, and a bright, natural skin now takes their place."

Dr. Chase's Ointment does not cause pain when applied, but soothes the sore or inflamed surface. 50 cents at all dealers, or Dr. A. W. Chase Medicine Co., Buffalo, N. Y.

Mac. Heinle Nabs a Thief at Buffalo.

One of Bellefonte's young men, Mac. Heinle, a son of Senator Heinle, of this place, did a heroic act at the Pan-American on Thursday of last week.

While in the Midway, where a crowd of ladies were gathered, one of them was showing some of her companions a fine ring, set with a large ruby, on her finger. A thief came along and observing this he made a sudden grab and slipped the ring from the lady's finger and ran, the ladies screaming "catch him, catch him."

There were no police handy and Heinle hearing the cry and seeing the fellow running towards him threw his arms around the thief and held him until the police could be called and took charge of him. On being searched the ring was found in the vest pocket of the thief. He was put under arrest.

Deathbed Flattery.

Almost every dying person is liable to be allured by the solemn attitude of the company and the restrained or flowing torrents of tears and emotions to an alternating conscious and unconscious comedy of conceitedness. The seriousness with which every dying person is treated has undoubtedly been the very finest enjoyment of his life to many a poor despised devil and a sort of indemnification and partial payment for much privation.—Works of Nietzsche.

Saluting With the Hat.

Before the invention of wigs the hat was rarely removed except to salute others, especially royal personages. It was worn at table when ladies or persons of rank were present. Except when saluting royalty it was the custom merely to raise the hand to the hat somewhat after the manner of a military salute. When it became the mode to wear a profusion of false hair, the hat was less needed as a protection for the head and was carried under the arm.

A Tart Retort.

The infant of a household was in its cradle. The head of the house was at home, peevish and fault finding. At length he became unendurable. "You have done nothing but make mistakes tonight," he growled.

"Yes," she answered meekly; "I began by putting the wrong baby to bed."—Chicago Journal.

Strong Again.

The woman who knows the full value of health is the woman who has lost it and regained it; the woman who from being weak and sickly is once again made a strong woman. Half a million weak and sickly women have been made strong and well by the aid of Dr. Pierce and his "Favorite Prescription." It cures the ills which weaken women. It regulates the periods, dries enfeebling drains, heals inflammation and ulceration, and cures female weakness. It nourishes the nerves and so cures nervousness. It promotes a healthy appetite and induces refreshing sleep.

"I had female trouble for eight years," writes Mrs. L. J. Dennis, of 828 East College Street, Jacksonville, Ills. "Words cannot express what I suffered. I sought relief among the medical profession and found none. Friends urged me to try Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. When I commenced taking this medicine I weighed ninety-five pounds. Now I weigh one hundred and fifty-six pounds—more than I ever weighed before. I was so bad I would lie from day to day and long for death to come and relieve my suffering. I had internal inflammation, a disagreeable drain, bearing-down pain, and such distress every month, but now I never have a pain—do all my own work and am a strong and healthy woman."

FUNSTON TO RESIGN.

Man Who Captured Aguinaldo Will Quit the Army for Profitable Commercial Work.

Army officers returning from the Philippines report that Gen. Fred Funston expects to tender his resignation as brigadier general in the regular establishment and engage in private business. He is quoted as having said as soon as all active military operations in the islands cease he will give up his place in the army and will represent a large commercial concern which has made him a handsome offer for his services. His resignation is expected to be forthcoming before October. The report that the Kansan would resign was thoroughly discussed by officers at the war department, and while no one seemed to have any direct information concerning his intentions the statement that he would leave the army was generally accepted as true. People in Washington who know Funston say that he is not by nature adapted to the routine of a military part in times of peace and that his spirit of daring and enterprise will lead him into other fields.

BRIG. GEN. FRED FUNSTON.
(Will Leave the Army Soon to Engage in Commercial Work.)

Officers who have returned within the past few days said he did not expect the promotion that resulted from his capture of Aguinaldo and that when he was shown the cablegram from the war department announcing his appointment as a brigadier general he expressed astonishment that his exploit should have led the president to accord him such recognition. At that time, it is said, he was making arrangements to get out of the army, his intention then being to accept a proposition of a large business concern to represent it in the Philippines. The promotion for the time being, of course, diverted his attention from such plans. The offer is said to have been renewed since, and as it would bring him a much larger salary than that of brigadier it is understood he has almost decided to accept it.

CARDINALS AT ROME.

Have Singular Privileges and Rules for Their Conduct.

Always Dress in Red and Etiquette Does Not Allow Them to Walk—The Sacred College and How It Is Constituted.

While in Rome etiquette does not allow a cardinal to walk. He must have a carriage and pair. When he goes out beyond the city walls an attendant follows him. Going to a public ceremony at the Vatican he is entitled to a gala train of three carriages, and if a prince to four.

In the pope's chapel the cardinals kneel at the benches on which they sit. They wear at ceremonial functions a cassock with a train of cloth in winter and of moire in summer. Collars, shoes and stockings are red. The girdle is of red moire with gold tassels, the rochet of lace and the mozetta the same as the cassock. In Rome the rochet is covered with a red mantelletta; outside the city it is uncovered. The hat is red felt with gold tassels.

The cardinals di curia, or those residing in Rome, are entitled to a yearly income, or piatto cardinalizio of 32,000 lire—about $6,400—which is paid out of the ePter's pence. The cardinal dwelling ordinarily has these special apartments: At the entrance is an antechamber for the domestics. Above a credence are the arms of the cardinal under a canopy. On the wall are suspended his two kneeling cushions, one of red and the other of violet silk, and his two umbrellas of the same colors. These last are for covering him when he is making a solemn entry into a church or following the viaticum bareheaded. The second room is for the cardinal's secretary. The third is called the antechamber of the biretta, because the red biretta is placed there on a console before a crucifix. Then comes the throneroom.

When a cardinal asserts that the pope has said this or that, or has given such an order, he must be believed on his word without being obliged to prove it. This is called the oruculum vivae vocis.

CARDINAL VANNUTELLI.
(The Most Popular Member of the "Sacred College.")

Cardinals should be 30 years of age. Mgr. Martinelli will be one of the youngest members of the college. He is now 53. Cardinal Skebensky, archbishop of Prague, is the youngest, being only 38. Cardinal Yives y Tuto comes next. He is 47. Then Mgr. Martinelli fits in, says the Baltimore Sun.

When the sacred college is complete there are 70 cardinals, namely six bishops, 50 priests and 14 deacons. Cardinals of a lower order have, with the consent of the pope, the right of option to pass to a higher order. The deacons can chose the vacant places of the cardinal priests if they have been deacons for ten years, and have been ordained to the priesthood. The senior cardinal priest present in Rome when one of the six bishoprics falls vacant has the option to succeed to it, with the exception of the sees of Ostia and of Porto, which are reserved for the dean and the subdean of the sacred college. The dean is the senior cardinal, dating from his promotion to one of the sees.

There are now 67 cardinals—40 Italians and 27 of other nationalities. It is said that Pope Leo XIII. desires always to have the membership near the plenum, or limit, and that he said just before making out the recent list or 12 new cardinals:

"Better that there should be as many as possible to choose from in the next conclave." Pope Pius IX., having had the longest reign, created the most cardinals, 179; Pope Leo XIII. has buried 136 cardinals since he began his pontificate.

Besides Cardinal Martinelli seven other cardinals have had to do with the church of North America. They are Cardinal Cheverus, the first bishop of Boston; Cardinal McCloskey, archbishop of New York; Cardinal Gibbons, of Baltimore; Cardinal Taschereau, of Quebec; Cardinal Perisco, bishop of Savannah; Cardinal Mazzella, the Jesuit theologian and professor at the college at Woodstock, Md., and Cardinal Satolli, former delegate to the United States. Of these cardinals Cheverus, Perisco and Mazzella had left this country before they were created cardinals.

Picturesque Susquehanna.

A correspondent of the London Chronicle writing from Buffalo, N. Y., says: "I have nothing against the Hudson, although, except for about twenty miles, it has always appeared to me a trifle gray and monotonous. But the less-talked-of and too-neglected Susquehanna is a much finer and more interesting stream. I had ample opportunity of forming conclusions as to the respective beauties of the two rivers as I was whisked from Hoboken to Buffalo the other day. For upwards of nine hours, and for a distance of at least 300 miles, the tracks run through a country which to an English eye has a peculiar charm, recalling as it does (but on a grander scale) the reaches and the woods of the Thames. Over and over again as I looked from the windows of the limited I could have sworn that I nearing Cliveden or Medmenham or Pangbourne. Then, however, the hills would rise almost to the dignity of mountains. Broad meadows, filled with rich, lush, summer grass and dotted with cattle; great hanging woods, reflected in calm, winding waters; villas, seeming to speak of comfort and peace, and from time to time, a glimpse of some village or town—at a distance not very unlike Henley or Great Marrow, are among the features of this pleasing route."

Bees Invaded a Store.

No business was transacted in the company store of the Bessemer Coal company Unity township, Friday afternoon between the hours of 5 and 7—usually the busiest of the day. A hive of bees had forsaken their quarters on a neighboring farm and took possession of the store. An immediate exodus was made by manager, and customers, and methods were devised to rid the store of the unwelcome guests. An attempt was made to drive them out with brush, but the honey-makers turned on them in retreat. Then a barrel of candy was placed in front of the store, but the sweets would not tempt the bees. Finally the burning of sulphur was proposed. The bees where obdurate at first and refused to depart, but when the store became blue with the sulphurous fumes after almost two hours work, the hive was driven out.

IN MEMORY OF MCKINLEY.

Solemn and Appropriate Services in the Methodist Church Sunday Night.

One of the most solemn and effecting services ever held in Bellefonte was that which took place Sunday evening in the Methodist Episcopal church. It was a Union Memorial Service, participated in by all the churches in town, except two, in memory of the late William McKinley, twenty-fourth President of the United States. The edifice was crowded to the doors and the close attention given to the service and the solemnity which pervaded the sanctuary was a marked tribute to the memory of the beloved martyred President.

The church was tastefully and beautifully decorated with the National colors draped in mourning and program bearing a deep black border were distributed at the door.

The services throughout were very touching indeed and many tear stained faces were noticed throughout the audience. Dr. Wilford P. Shriner, pastor of the church presided at the meeting and a large choir made up from all the churches in town rendered the music. The organist for the occasion was Miss Carrie Bubb, of Williamsport.

The addresses of the evening were delivered by Rev. H. C. Holloway, D. D., of the Lutheran church and Rev. William Laurie D. D. LL. D., of the Presbyterian church.

Dr. Holloway in his address refered to the fact that he had been acquainted with McKinley for the past thirty years having resided in his congressional district in Ohio. He recalled many pleasing incidents which showed the sterling worth and high christian character of the dead President. His address was carefully prepared and ably delivered.

Dr. Laurie followed in an eloquent tribute to McKinley in which he classed him as one of the wisest and ablest of our Presidents. The Reverend gentleman was deeply touched by the sorrow and solemnity of the occasion and spoke very feeling. He denounced in strong terms anarchy and yellow journalism and advocated a law for the restriction of foreign immigration.

Dr. Shriner of the Methodist and Rev. Perks, of the United Brethren, both made earnest and affecting prayers and Rev. W. H. Brown of the Evangelical church read the Scripture lesson.

The following was the program in full:

Gold and White Wedding at Mill Hall.

The residence of Mr. and Mrs. S. P. Harris, Mill Hall, was the scene of a very brilliant wedding ceremony Thursday evening. The contracting parties were Rev. H. Willis Hartsock, pastor of the M. E. Church at Juniata, near Altoona, and Miss Maud L. Harris. The ceremony was performed at 8 o'clock in the presence of 72 guests, and was conducted by Rev. W. A. Carver, of Airville, Pa., uncle of the bride. He was assisted by Rev. F. D. Hartsock, of Union, N. Y., brother of the groom, and by Rev. L. E. Brown, of Mill Hall, pastor of the bride.

Miss Maye Carver, daughter of the officiating clergyman, was maid of honor, and J. V. Thompson, of Wesleyan University, was the groomsman. The ushers were Rev. D N. Miller, of Mill Hall, and W. A. Thompson, of Curwensville.

Promptly at the appointed hour the sweet strains of Mendelssohn's wedding march, as rendered by Miss Bertha McGhee, gave notice of the approach of the wedding party, who took their positions under a pretty floral bell in the front of the parlor, and facing the clergymen, who, with the ring ceremony soon pronounced the contracting parties husband and wife.

Congratulations followed, after which refreshments were served. Later in the evening Rev. and Mrs. Hartsock left for Williamsport and other points. They will make their home at Juniata.

Mrs. Hartsock's presents were numerous, useful and ornamental.

Among the out of town guests were noticed the parents, brothers and sisters of the groom, Mr. and Mrs. W. P. Harris, Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Harris, Mr. and Mrs. J. V. Thompson, the Misses Tweed and others.

Wedding Announcement.

Mr. and Mrs. Alvah Alonzo Hoffman, of Pleasantville, Pa., have issued invitations announcing the approaching marriage of their daughter, Caroline, to W. Harrison Walker Esq., of this place. The happy event will take place at the home of the bride's parents on Chestnut street, Pleasantville, Wednesday, the twenty-fifth of September at 8'oclock in the evening.

CENTRE COUNTY FAIR.

Although the Track Was Heavy There Were Some Exciting Races.

In spite of the threatening weather three thousand people attended the big fair Wednesday at the Driving Park. The features of the day were the racing, the successful balloon ascension by Madame Wrence, the acrobatic performance and the trained dog show in front of the grand stand. The Mid-way is more amusing this year than last and is proving an attractive feature.

The Coleville band discourses fine music to the crowd on the ground and to the occupants of the grand stand during the races.

Although the track was heavy, on account of the heavy rain of the night previous, good time was made. Darkness prevented the finishing of the second race, the deciding heat being postponed until today at 1 o'clock. The summaries:

Time, 1.01 both heats.

There were fully 5000 people at the Centre County Fair on Thursday and had not the weather been so threatening the crowd would have been twice as large. The track was to heavy for the harness races but the runners were called out and gave a thrilling exhibition in the mud.

Three horses were started, Phil Thompson, Susie Houze and Baby. when turning the north end of the track Susie Houze slipped in the mud and fell, throwing her jockey James Douglass, of Williamsport, twenty feet. Douglass was unconscious for five minutes, but finally came around without any apparent injury. Phil Thompson won the heat and the racing ended. The Fair was continued through Saturday so all the races could be ended.

Swallowed by The Earth.

Last week, after one of the heavy rains, Mrs. David Harshbarger, living in the old Bitner home, at the foot of the mountain, had an experience that thoroughly frightened her, yet did no harm. At the time mentioned the lady had occasion to enter her garden for vegetables, and while standing there looking over the garden truck, the ground underneath her suddenly gave way. The falling of the earth was too quick to permit her to step aside but in her effort to save herself from dropping to where she knew not—she threw her arms around a post supporting a grape trellis. Her grasp was not tight enough to sustain her, however, but she sunk with the earth. The ground about the bottom of the post was firm, and when her arms slid over the rough support to that point she had sufficient strength to check the descent.

Alone, and seeing her footing five or six feet beneath her, she at once exerted every muscle and by so doing climbed to terra firma once more. But for her superior strength, she might have sunk into the earth and been strangled or frightened to death.

The orifice is about three feet in diameter, widening to fully ten feet, with great crevices along the sides.—Centre Reporter.

Franciscus Is A Great Magician.

Franciscus, the great magician, made his second appearance before a Bellefonte audiance Thursday night to a crowded house and everyone was well pleased with the performance. His work was equal if not superior to Keller's and completely mystified his audience.

The dancing of Marie Cleo proved a pleasing diversion and drew forth unstinted applause while the Parisian dance by "Solaris" were executed with a grace and finish, that was indeed bewildering. The costumes and electrical effects were very beautiful indeed.

A Great Attraction.

One of the largest audiences ever in Garman's opera house greeted Shipman Brother's excellent company in Mark Twain's famous comedy Pudd'nhead Wilson" which appeared at that pretty play house last week. Bellefonte's best people were represented in the audience. They went there expecting something fine and they were not disappointed, as it certainly was one of the cleanest and best attractions that Manager Garman ever booked.

The company was a strong one all through every character being well portrayed. William S. Gill as "Pudd'nhead Wilson" and Louise Ripley as "Roxy" were the leading characters and their acting drew forth hearty applause from their well pleased hearers. The scenery and costumes carried by the company was all new and up-to-date and left nothing to be desired in that line. Manager Garman can always be assured of a big house when he books such attractions as Shipman Brothers, "Pudd'nhead Wilson".
